

Characterize a Patient or Population Health Problem

In a 5-7-page created assessment, recognize how state board nursing practice standards or organizational or governmental strategies related to innovation, care buy assignment coordination, and local area assets can be applied to address this problem. Explain how this mediation will work on the quality of care, enhance patient safety, and decrease costs for the framework and individual.

NURS FPX 4900 Assessment 1 is planned to assist you with characterizing a patient, family or population health problem that will be the focal mark of your capstone project. You will explore this problem from a leadership, collaboration, communication, change management, and strategy perspective.

The main phase in characterizing the problem is to perceive a patient, family or gathering that you want to work with during your practicum. You can pick a companion or a family part, yet you should pick someone who has a current or past health problem that impacts their quality of life.

For example, in case you decide to work with a black patient who has hypertension, consider using dietary modifications and way of life behaviors to decrease beat. Studies have shown that a healthy eating routine and regular physical activity lower beat.

Then, you will choose how innovation, coordination of care, and local area assets can be applied to the patient, family, or gathering's health NURS FPX 4020 Assessment 4 problem. Plan to spend about 2 direct practicum hours exploring these aspects of the problem. You will then cultivate a proposed mediation to address the problem, based on your assessment and supported by data and scholarly, proof based sources.

You've gleaned new information about leadership, collaboration, communication, change management and strategy. As of now it is the ideal opportunity to apply that information to the problem you've characterized and encourage a capstone dare to demonstrate your learning.

The NURS FPX 4900 Assessment 1 Problem Identification Template will assist you with characterizing your problem in a logical and proof based manner that's appropriate for your picked nursing profession. You can also evaluate the endlessly most ideal ways to tackle it. To assist you with getting all that going, the 5-7 page NURS FPX 4900 Assessment 1 problem identification template is available here. It's also accompanied by the Analyzing a Current Health Care Problem or Issue Practicum Center Sheet. This will coordinate your activities during the clinical practicum and the associated made and oral assessments.

Encourage an Intervention

Having assessed the problem, as of now you want to encourage a mediation that will address the recognized issue. It may be a patient-facing mediation, or one that remembers a change for strategy and cycle.

To encourage an intervention, you ought to rely upon data and scholarly, proof based sources. These will assist you with evaluating the adequacy of the proposed mediation and choose if it's appropriate for addressing your problem

In a 5-7-page formed deliverable, explain your proposed mediation and its impact on the patient, family or population NURS FPX 6103 Assessment 1 The History of Nursing Education health problem you've characterized. You'll have to explain how it will work on the quality of care, enhance patient safety, and decrease costs for the framework and individual.

You'll also have to portray how state board nursing practice standards and/or organizational or governmental arrangements may affect the problem you've characterized, inside the setting of innovation, care coordination, and local area assets. You'll have to explain research that has attempted the viability of these standards and/or approaches in further creating results for this problem.

Analyze the Mediation

The NURS FPX 4900 Assessment 1 anticipates that you should analyze the mediation you created, addressing how it can work on patient and/or framework results. This will incorporate analyzing the occupation of leadership and change management strategies, choosing NURS FPX 6026 Assessment 1 how nursing morals informed the improvement of the mediation/arrangement/professional thing, and explaining how health information innovation and patient care innovation were applied to your proposed intervention.